[note; Miss Lilian Knight didn't only "sell the shoes", in fact she sold the provisions and was an expert at cutting butter / cheese etc., (in those days both came in the block and your required weight was cut and weighed). Miss Knight was always so accurate in her cutting that rarely did she have to add or subtract anything at the scales. It was always the same when she weighed out the tea from the tea chest, and I always enjoyed watching her fold and tie down the packet of tea with string - who remembers that?]
